MILTERORD 11

No secrets to success; just good habits most of the time, here is what we shared with the students last week...

Spot the difference

KS4 (GCSE's)	KS5 (A Levels)
8-10 subjects	3 subjects
5-8 hours of lessons per fortnight	10 hours of lessons per fortnight
Homework once per week / fortnight	Homework multiple times per week / fortnight
Must study certain subjects	Freedom of choice over subjects
Optional additional work outside of lesson time	Requirement for additional independent work outside of lesson time (45 hours per fortnight)

What we are askina of vou

GCSE's	A Level / Btec
8-10 subjects	3 subjects
50 hours of lessons per fortnight	30 hours of lessons per fortnight
Average 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ hours HW per subject per fortnight (25hours)	45 hours homework / independent study
Total of 75 hours (37.5hrs per week)	Total of 75 hours (37.5hrs per week)
Time spread out over more subjects	Intensity will feel different as the time is spent over 3 subjects

The importance of a fast start

- A Level's / Level 3 BTec are a step up from what you'll be used to
- If you can adopt good study habits from day one, you will be in a good place to succeed
- Set your stall out from the start and make your Sixth Form life easier in the long run, good independent study routines, work life balance and having a goal are all steps to helping you achieve this

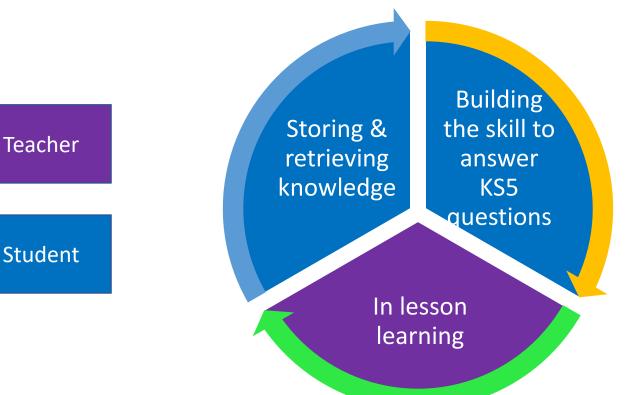

So how can students get there?

The Practice Questionnaire

Think about the work you have completed so far in your study periods and in preparation for in class assessments. It is useful to get to know what types of revision activities you currently use as a Year group and where teachers can support you in trying different techniques to make you more successful at A level. Complete the questionnaire in your booklet.
